Programmes related to Orientation of Students

7.1.10 The Institution has a prescribed code of conduct for students, teachers, administrators and other staff and conducts periodic programs in this regard.

Code of Conduct Monitoring Plan

Every year IEHE organizes code of conduct under orientation program for newly admitted students, in which they were informed to uphold and maintain the essence of social justice, to promote and maintain academic activity in the institution, and to develop a shared vision around standard and success for all. They students are also oriented about the soft skills and behavioral conduct. They were also informed and instructed regarding the administration and variety of activities, including developing and aligning curriculum instructional practices, and assessment; problem solving; and participating in peer observations.

On a regular basis, HOD's of different departments orient their faculties regarding the code of conduct in which they are asked to adhere to a responsible pattern of conduct and devote themselves diligently to their work and utilize the time to the service of the Institute. The teachers are also instructed to act like mentors and guide the students in different perspectives.

Institute has developed a system in which different committees were constructed for the proper channelization of work. Institute's Code of Conduct Committee works actively. The team members orient the rules and regulations to the administrative staff and then the same was addressed by the Director of IEHE to others. The departments were asked to maintain a minute register instructing the same rules and regulations actively.
